OUR LIST OF CO-WORKERS.

Fifty years ago this list was small, but it enrolled, as it does still, consecrated workers. Some of them were toiling among the benighted inhabitants in the jungles of Africa, some among the newly emancipated blacks of the West India Islands, some among the Indians in the dreary wilderness of the West and others among those in our own country north and south, who looked upon them with suspicion and dislike as being Abolitionists. When the four millions of blacks were emancipated, the number of these workers greatly increased and they went from homes and churches at the North to the fields in the South, where suspicion and even danger at first awaited them. But they did their work heroically and have been gradually winning favor by the transcendently good work they are doing in uplifting a benighted people.

We refer with pleasure to the letter of Rev. Dr. Beard published herewith, showing what can be done in one short year in making such a favorable change, and a like work to that done among the blacks is also done among the Indians, the Mountaineers, the Chinese of the West and in Alaska. We ask money to sustain this widespread work, but we ask for more than that, we invoke God's favor and the prayers and cordial sympathy of His children upon a service rendered to the least of Christ's brethren.

FINANCES.

We fear that the impression has gone abroad that the American Missionary Association is rapidly paying off its debt. This impression may be due to the generous and spontaneous contribution of about $10,000 received at the Annual Meeting in Boston, and to the list of subscribers to the Jubilee Share Fund. But the favorable anticipation is not borne out by the Treasurer's report for the last few months. It is true that the donations for the last three months, ending December 31st, show a gain of $8,177.49 (including receipts from the Jubilee Share Fund) over the corresponding months of last year, but this is more than counterbalanced by a decrease from estates of $16,445.33; and the results thus far show a total debt of $83,949.32 December 31.

While these results are unfavorable, we do not regard them as discouraging, for the destitute races of our land, who look so largely to this Association for their uplift from darkness and poverty, make an appeal which the friends of Christ and humanity will not pass by unheeded. Our schools are full to overflowing, and appeals most touching press upon us for enlargement. Scholars come from great distances and turn away with tears from the doors they cannot enter. Our church work could be almost indefinitely extended if we but had the means; but to all these earnest appeals we turn a deaf ear, and only ask to be relieved from debt and to be enabled to carry on the work already in hand. An increase of donations and of subscriptions to the Jubilee Share Fund will meet the emergency that is now upon us.

JUBILEE SHARE FUND.

The shares reported last month were 717. In this number of the Magazine 27 more are added making a total of 744. These, when all sums are paid in, will amount to $37,200. The subscriptions to the Jubilee Share Fund are made with the understanding that they are given without lessening regular contributions to current work. We believe there are many friends of the Association who will be glad to add their names to the list of those who step forward in a time of need to render essential aid to the work among the ignorant and impoverished. We hope that the responses to this call will be made promptly, as we are sure they will with cheerfulness as unto the Saviour himself.

LINCOLN MEMORIAL DAY.

Sunday, Feb. 14, 1897.

Within the last few years a large number of Sunday-schools and Christian Endeavor Societies, with many of the churches, have signalized the birthday of our great President, Abraham Lincoln. By some appropriate exercise they have associated the Sunday nearest this birthday with the work of the American Missionary Association.

The grand outcome of Lincoln's career is a reunited nation of free people. Emancipation is the one word which typifies his life work; emancipation from slavery of the body and of the mind. The Sunday-school lesson assigned Lincoln Memorial Sunday this year is happily entitled "Opening the Prison Doors." This title fitly typifies the associations of the day. An appropriate service is in preparation by the American Missionary Association, designed as an opening service for the Sunday-school, the Christian Endeavor Society or the church. It is less than twenty minutes long, and does not displace the general service. It includes responsive Scripture readings and brief descriptive notices of the different classes of mission work which are most naturally suggested by the parentage, childhood, manhood and services of the great President.

On application, copies will be sent to those desiring to commemorate the day by such an appropriate observance.

A STUDY IN COLOR.

BY SECRETARY A. F. BEARD.

A Christian lady who had come into possession of an excellent plantation of more than a thousand acres in North Carolina made the proffer of it to the American Missionary Association. Her personal examination of the property had revealed to her a condition of life in those who occupied the cabins and cultivated the soil that touched her heart. She hoped the Association would accept her gift of the entire tract of land with the farm buildings upon it, including the cabins, their inhabitants remaining in them, and would open some kind of an Agricultural and Industrial School. Indeed, to further this desire on her part, this benevolent lady added to her proffer of the real estate, sufficient money for a dormitory to accommodate the teachers and fifty boys and girls, with another handsome building for a school-house.

The consideration of this benevolent offer to the Association brought me to Enfield, North Carolina. It is on the Wilmington & Weldon Railroad, not many miles below Weldon. Four miles out from the station was the beautiful tract of land. I found buildings on it in a state of dilapidation. For lack of a nail in time, the winds and the rains had made havoc with roofs and sidings. The fences were largely in the way of suggestion. They had once existed. The tillers of this soil were in entire accord with their environments. How the rags upon their bodies held together was a mystery only equalled by a corresponding one, viz., how their miserable cabins scattered on the outskirts of the farm held together. These cabins were double ones, having two rooms and two entrances. In each of these rooms lived families of several persons. Apologies for beds, a rude table and some rickety chairs made the inventory of the furniture. The parents could not read, and it was impossible for an unpracticed ear to understand entirely the patois of their speech. Yet the tattered garments of the parents were tolerable clothing when compared with that of the children. Parents and children worked in the field. The children too young to do this remained in the cabins and watched over children younger still. All were fed by rations which were charged up to them, while they were credited with their work.

None of them knew how they stood in the accounting except as they were told. When the settlement came there was invariable disappointment and wrangling.

However honestly and possibly generously they had been treated by those who hired them, these poor Negroes always expected something when the crop came in, but when the problem of the year was solved the result was a minus quantity. They were deeper in debt. This state of things no doubt was owing in part to their own ignorance and improvidence. When they were paid in money they did not know how to use it. A man would work under the burning sun—half the time without a hat—and on being paid off on Saturday would expend his wages for a sun umbrella to hold over his head when he went to church. Not to draw the lines of the picture too finely, the condition was well-nigh complete degradation.

In the midst of this condition of things the dormitory was built. Following it came the school-house. A year has passed and I am again here.

What can be done in a year? The dormitory has taken from the cabins pupils up to the number of seventy; that is to the full extent of the accommodations. The rooms of the boarders are cared for by the pupils themselves. They have experienced the first baths of their lives, and now take them with regularity. They are comfortably clad in garments which they have earned by work on the plantation and in the laundry. They have been taught already to keep them in perfect repair. There are no more rags. Their rooms are simply furnished without carpets or rugs, but the floors are shining clean, and the rooms are as tidy as could be desired. Order rules. Then table manners are such as to excite no criticism. The little ones rapidly learn to read, and the older ones who had already advanced to the three "Rs" in three or four months of the rural schools which they had attended, have made remarkable progress in their first year of careful "schooling." Eager, earnest, well-behaved, the year's accomplishment would go far to justify all of the present outlay.

A year ago not one of these cabins could boast a lamp for evening time. Now the day pupils must study evenings at their homes, and their books require a lamp. They have it. A year ago the light of the stars could come through the logs into every cabin. Now they are ceiled and whitened, and each family has two rooms. A year ago stray shillings went for whiskey. Now those who rent the cabins must sign a bond which forfeits their home and contract for work if any whiskey is brought on the plantation, and for the first time in their lives the dwellers in these cabins who have worked upon the plantation have come to the year's settlement of accounts without an altercation or angry word, and have surprised themselves with the balances in their favor. The parents are no better educated than before, but they have learned not a little within the year. They have taken excellent lessons in self-respect. They are getting a knowledge that is new to them. They are realizing that they are worth something to themselves. When they lived like cattle, they could not respect themselves like people. They have learned lessons of hope. They see a little glint of a future before them. It has given them courage. It has strengthened their better selves. One said to me before this work began, "Boss, it can't be no wus." Now they are seeing that it can be a great deal better.

They are realizing to some extent that their prosperity comes in proportion to their intelligence. One improvement suggests another. One comfortable whitewashed cabin shames its uncared-for neighbor. Children decently clad from Northern barrels of partly worn or discarded clothing set the fashion for others. In short, they have already learned the alphabet of Christian civilization. They will spell "baker" soon, and then farewell to hoe-cakes. The time will come when they will want houses instead of cabins; at least the children of to-day will have them to-morrow. They will not go back from the rooms and comforts of our dormitories to the barbarism of their early years. This means homes. Homes are the sources of life. They stand for order, purity, elevation of thought and purpose, evolution of social and civil society. With manners and morals will come social discriminations which will rule out those who will choose to be base and vulgar and low-down. In this way the influences for good will stream forth and widen until we cannot measure them. Present brutalized conditions which blight the common life will give way to enlightened and better days. There is no question as to the result. Every teacher in our schools of the South will testify to this. There is no discouragement. These teachers know that they are doing more than teaching. They are saving a race. They are building up a new order of things. They are greater factors of blessing to our country than many orators in Congress. Their pay is less in the coin of the nation. Their honor may be less in the general esteem, but in the great Book of Life they have their recognitions.

In this Enfield school the farm boys work during the day and have their school sessions in the evening. In this way they earn enough to board and clothe themselves and have a balance to their credit to attend the day schools of the next year. Some of them assure me that they will work their way for ten years if need be, for the privilege of climbing higher, for it is their one chance in life.

I have neglected to say who are the teachers in this new school. They all belong to the race which they are uplifting. Two of them were educated at Oberlin. The others are graduates of Fisk University. The Farm Superintendent took his Bachelor's degree at Fisk. The Mathematics, the Latin and the Greek all come in play. The "higher education" has multiplied his values. The orderliness of thought, the breadth of vision, the refinement of manner, the ability to explain, the power to educate and not merely to train students are his. One may train an animal, but he cannot educate him. He cannot teach him to think consecutively. Only one who knows how to think clearly, consecutively, accurately, can educate people with rational faculties. Those who are possessed of the shallow idea that the higher education unfits those who secure it for the hard and sturdy work of life should visit Enfield. They who think after this sort have not gone high enough themselves.

I mention this school only because I happen to be here and because it is typical. From day to day as I visit our schools, these observations and experiences add their testimonies. The race is advancing. The little lad Wright, who shouted to General Howard, when asked what tidings he should carry to the Northern people, "Tell them we're risin'," is now the able President of the State Normal and Industrial College of Georgia; Richard Wright, of whom the Atlanta Constitution said yesterday: "The feature of Emancipation in Atlanta was the oration by Prof. R. R. Wright, of the State College, near Savannah, one of the best known, as well as one of the ablest Negro orators of the South. Prof. Wright made as good an address as any colored man has ever made in Atlanta."

Where did President Wright find his power? In the college planted and sustained by the American Missionary Association. The Association did it. He did it, and the good people who built the college and sent the teachers, did it. Therefore, "let us hold fast the confession of our hope that it waver not, and so much the more as we see the day drawing nigh."

ORANGE PARK SCHOOL.

This school has again been opened, making no distinction of race or color among its pupils. A law passed by the State of Florida practically prohibited its continuance on this basis, but after a fair and full trial in the proper courts, the law was pronounced unconstitutional. We have therefore reopened the school. This has been done in no aggressive spirit, but as being simply in accordance with our privileges and under the advice of our attorney in Florida.

The Field.

PLAYING IN WORK.

One thing the children of the primary room enjoy is the clay modeling. They do like rolling the blue clay into squares, cubes, cylinders, etc. Some day we will let them attempt the little vase and other models sent us in one of the barrels. The quaint expressions and droll humor peculiar to these dark people are continually cropping out in the little ones to the great amusement of their teacher. "If I had two apples and ate them both up, how many would I have left?" she asked of Jimmie Hall, one of the new four-year-olds. "The cores," shouted Jimmie, with the greatest assurance.

Y. P. S. C. E. AMONG THE HIGHLANDERS AND INDIANS.

The Y. P. S. C. E. has been a very large element in the mountain work. The American Missionary Association has appointed a Superintendent among the Highlanders whose time has been given to a considerable degree in establishing Endeavor Societies. These societies are scattered all over this vast mountain region through the aggressive efforts of the Association and are productive of excellent results. Four churches have grown out of these Endeavor Societies in the mountain field during the past year.

The students in our mountain schools are also enthusiastic Endeavorers. From Skyland Institute, Blowing Rock, N. C., one of the girls, whose heart had been stirred with interest in the Endeavor movement, organized a Junior Endeavor Society during the vacation in the country hamlet in which she lived. Her own account of the effort was interesting. She said: "We had no papers and did not know how to organize. We wanted a Junior Society and were willing to do our best, and so we called it the 'Try Junior Endeavor Society,' for we did try to have it right." Surely the loyal Endeavorers throughout the whole land would welcome to their cordial and loving fellowship the "Try Junior Endeavor Society" of the A. M. A. mountain field.

Among the Indians the Y. P. S. C. E. has also been of great usefulness. The Association teachers and Indian pupils have pushed the work in this field. Pastors of churches and teachers in schools of the Association are officers in these Endeavor Unions in the far West.

In local Endeavor Societies, Indian pupils from our schools take active part and hold official positions. The President of one society is Francis Touch-the-Clouds, while the Secretary is Jeannette Touch-the-Clouds. Certainly a society under the direction of officers with such names ought to have lofty aspirations!

The Vice-President of one Endeavor Society is Miss Lillie Iron-Wing. These Indian Endeavorers are loyal to the interests of the Y. P. S. C. E. through the land. Their contributions are generous for all departments of mission work. They have special claims upon the Christian Endeavorers the country through.

A TEACHER'S DEATH.—The sad news of the death of Miss Agnes Ruth Mitchell at Skyland Institute, Blowing Rock, N. C., has reached us. A more extended notice will be given in the March magazine, when we shall have had more complete information. She has been a most devoted and conscientious Christian teacher and her loss will be greatly felt.
